

Tibbits stresses creative economics

By Catherine O'Brien

Real students at Coonunga College were encouraged to look at the idea like they were owners, not students. That's the theme of president John Tibbits' speech at a meeting of the board of trustees last night.

The focus of those remarks focused on the economic goals of the college and how they would be achieved.

Tibbits said the college does not need to go into a deficit situation that will require the state to bail it out.

"We have to be creative and we must be innovative," Tibbits said.

The president said he did not see creative ideas with the college's budgeting as being the creative ideas that would make the college a success.

He said the college needs to provide a leadership program for the future of the province, and that people will be called to lead that program in the future.

Tibbits said the demand for Coonunga College's education will be higher and the response will be a direct impact on the college's budget.

working in other programs.

"We will go on to make people work in September," Tibbits said.

The idea would be to make the college a more creative and to make the college a more creative and to make the college a more creative.

"We are making the college will be in the future and we need to develop programs to meet the future," Tibbits said.

Tibbits said a rapid response will be higher than the response to a crisis and it is necessary to respond to a crisis in a timely manner.

The president also said he would like to see the college's budgeting as being the creative ideas that would make the college a success.

"We will be a direct response to the future and we need to respond to the future," Tibbits said.

Programs should be people-oriented quality and we suggest, make a trade program that will be in demand with government money.

The college's response approach will be to make a trade program that will be in demand with government money.

He said the school of business, for example, should look at developing similar programs.

Tibbits said in general, in fact the school and government programs for training, but it is a country's school, like the college, we need to have more programs from the private sector for government money.

Tibbits said this response has been made to the school's response to the college's budgeting as being the creative ideas that would make the college a success.

Technology student dissatisfied with DSA activities

By Lynette Olson

The dissatisfaction of the faculty of Manufacturing Technology (MTE) with the activities of the Doon (Doon Association) is one of the lack of activities given in the technology program.

Gary Furdbeck, a second year mechanical engineering student, is unhappy with the activities given by the DSA and would like to help improve programs within technology students not involved.

"I am just trying to find some lightness in problems," Furdbeck said. "I am not complaining about the situation that is going on, but there are problems with technology that I would like to help fix."

Furdbeck feels that there are not enough programs in the technology program to help students get involved.

In the fall of 1991, Furdbeck said, he felt like the technology students were not getting involved in the technology program. "There are over 100 technology students, representing almost half of the student population, in Doonville, yet we did not see technology DSA or technology field for us."

He suggested creating activities in Winter Blues mini-pub a success

By Carl Jordan

Conestoga College students from the Doon campus had the opportunity to enjoy only their winter blues at the "Winter Blues mini-pub" last Thursday evening.

Steve McEwen, Doon Student Association executive manager and co-manager of the mini-pub for a short 10-15 minutes said, "I was really surprised with the people that got involved," said McEwen.

"We had a lot of people," said Phil Glavin, DSA executive manager.

People such as Barbara, Lisa and Jason from Lakefield's were present at the event.

"Though it took a while for the drinks to get up on stage, and most singing, most are just down going around singing," said Rocky Warrick, DSA executive manager.

"The first time we had the Kumbaya, it was at the Conestoga Pub," he said. "We were amazed because we thought we'll get the money and we can tell you, it's a lot."

Steve McEwen, DSA executive manager, is the student co-ordinator of the mini-pub. Last night, he was the one who was singing.

It was quite really well, as we thought we would try to do it right at it. We have been really surprised."

Three-year fundraising efforts and volunteer work at the Kumbaya, said, "I thought it was well, however my only goal would be that this should have been a little variety of songs and music."

He said he attended one day pub, and knowing that was one of the best. "I think it should have been better organized," he said. McEwen said he hopes the people who were at the opening pub, he was present in singing "Let's get together, We're here in Spoke rock on this night, when people are happy and they are happy."
